[1] If you ask someone to name the senses, they'll probably say: 'sight, hearing, smell, taste and touch.' But are these all? Isn't there another sense that people are supposed to have?

[2] Different people have different ideas about this other sense. we usually call it 'common sense'. It isn't like the other senses because it isn't linked to a part of the body, such as seeing with the eyes, smelling with the nose and hearing with the ears. It could have something to do with the brain, but it isn't something we can learn at school.

[3] Common sense is what we use when we decide what to do in certain situations correctly. For example, what do we do when we have locked ourselves out of the house? Or, how do we drive when the road is wet and dangerous?

[4] Common sense doesn't always seem to work when it comes to personal situations or feelings. People sometimes say things about other people like: 'Why is he giving her more money? Doesn't he have the common sense to stop? She'll only spend the money on useless things!' So it seems not everyone has common sense or uses it properly. The French writer Voltaire once said: 'Common sense is not so common.'

28. Which of the following sentences is TRUE about common sense?

1. Everyone has common sense.
2. Common sense is a rare physical ability.
3. Common sense helps people make right decisions.
4. Common sense is something people learn at school.

| 3. focused on physical appearance | 4. someone's private life or feelings |

2. Choosing the outfit for a school welcome meeting
3. Reading a map to find directions to Siam Paragon
4. Memorizing a long poem for a school competition
